

Anna Pogromskaya

Working with Gifted Students as a Vital Component of Future Teachers' Professional Competence

The teacher's role in a student's personal development as well as in his or her individuality formation is difficult to be overestimated. Therefore, the important goal of modern education in Poland and Ukraine, on the one hand, is to create all possible conditions for identification and development of gifted children, and on the other hand – to develop the new approaches in teachers training aimed at work with gifted students.

Getting teachers ready for work with gifted children in Poland is one of the most important issues put before them as a problem of extraordinary complexity and significance including identification of the abilities of gifted children, facilitating their support and development, and thus support and development of intellectual and creative potential of the country. That is why in work with gifted students are important as personal qualities and professional skills of future teachers, so as the responsibility for its results.